

Australian Government

Australian Sports Anti-Doping Authority

TABLE TENNIS NEW SOUTH WALES – ANTI-DOPING STATEMENT

The Australian Sports Anti-Doping Authority (ASADA) is the Australian Government body responsible for protecting Australia's sporting integrity through the elimination of doping.

ASADA is Australia's national anti-doping organisation established in 2006 by the Australian Government. The role is to develop a sporting culture in Australia that is free from doping, and where an athlete's performance is purely dependent on talent, determination, courage and honesty.

Australia is at the forefront of international efforts to tackle doping in sport along with collaborating with foreign National Anti-Doping Organisations, the World Anti-Doping Agency and other stakeholders to influence the anti-doping agenda and further the Australian Government's efforts to harmonise anti-doping practices internationally.

ASADA Website

Table Tennis Australia's Anti-Doping Policy

Table Tennis Australia's Anti-Doping Policy is adopted and implemented in conjunction with Table Tennis NSW's Anti-Doping policy by the SSO sporting administration body in accordance with ASADA's and the sporting administration body's responsibilities to eradicate doping in sport in Australia. This anti-doping policy contains rules governing the conditions .

Policy and information regarding on-line search tool and education e-learning modules are readily available on this website – under Governance

Table Tennis New South Wales's Anti-Doping Policy

Table Tennis NSW's Anti-Doping Policy recognises the athletes right to compete in doping – free sport and promotes the health , fairness and equality for all athletes participating in sport and recreation

Table Tennis NSW condemns doping as defined by the World Anti – Doping code – and adopts and implements all anti-doping rules and policies in co-operation with other relevant authorities including any testing via the NSO. Table Tennis NSW promotes anti-doping education and research. Policy and information is readily available on this WEBSITE under Governance.

Table Tennis NSW endorses, recognises and will uphold all sanctions imposed by relevant sporting bodies by national or international bodies